NAZI DRIVE IN LIBYA HALTED

CHINA TROOPS ENCIRCLE TWO YUNNAN TOWNS

Press Counter-Offensive In Attempt to Force Enemy Back Into Burma.

JAPS CLAIM KINHWA

Chinese Say They Still Hold Chekiang Capital, Admit Heavy Fighting.

BULLETIN

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts),—(AP)—The Domei agency reported that Kinhwa, provisional capital of the Chinese seaboard province of Chekiang, fell to the Japanese today at 7 a. m. (The Chinese spokesman at Chungking declined late this afternoon to confirm the city's fall and said the Japanese claim was "most probably untrue.")

CHUNGKING—Chinese forces launching a general counter-offensive in western Yunnan province, have encircled the enemy-held cities of Tengyueh and Lungling while the besieged Chinese defenders of Kinhwa, 1,500 miles to the east, still hold out against 40,000 Japanese attackers, military quarters revealed today.

The Chinese drive in Yunnan was viewed as an all-out attempt to hurl the remaining Japanese invaders back into Burma.

A military spokesman said Chinese troops were "closing in" on both Lungling, key enemy base on the Burma road 40 miles inside China, and Tengyeuh, a city of 19,000 north of the Burma road.

"Our forces are only three kilometers (1.8 miles) away from Tengyueh and the west bank of the Salween river has been cleared of the enemy," the spokesman said.

He estimated that the Japanese force remaining in Yunnan consisted of less than two regiments, about 6,000 men.

The official Central News agency and the spokesman agreed that Kinhwa still was in Chinese hands following a third Japanese frontal attack on that capital of Chekiang province.

The spokesman flatly denied enemy claims that the city had been captured and said the Chinese had been resisting "gallantly" since Monday.

"There is see-saw fighting in Kinhwa's outskirts, mainly along four routes," he said. "On each of

Some 450 of the thousands of women signing up at the 42 recruiting offices will be selected to start training in the officers candidate school about July 15 at Ft. Des Moines, Ia. Forty women will be selected from each of the nine army corps areas and an additional 90 will be picked from the volunteer aircraft warning service.

Predicts Jap Air Raids on United States

Stimson Says Foe Must Retaliate for Tokyo Attack By Doolittle.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today that it is "almost inevitable" that the Japanese will attempt to make "face saving" raids on the United States in retaliati on for the smashing blow delivered by U. S. army fliers against Tokyo.

Replying to a press conference inquiry as to whether the Japanese might make such an attempt, Stimson said:

"The U. S. government through Gen. Doolittle (Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle), administered a stinging, humiliating, surprise blow when he bombed Tokyo. This was evident because at the time of the raid the Japanese were boasting of their invulnerability to such a raid.

"Anyone who knows Oriental psychology—and I have had experience with it—knows that it has meant a most serious loss of face which can be wiped out only by a return blow; a blow, if possible, bigger than that suffered by their own nation."

Stimson added that it is our task "to set our house in order for what seems inevitable."

"We are alert to this almost inevitable consequence of the Tokyo raid," he continued, "and we are doing everything we can to prepare for such a return blow.

He reminded the reporters that there is no perfect defense for long coastlines such as this nation has.

"But I want to assure you we will not relax from our greatest defense," he said. "That is, preparation for a major offensive."

Asked if he was speaking merely of the west coast, Stimson said he was speaking of all the coasts. He pointed out, however, that the west coast was closest to Japan. But, he added, there must be no relaxation of the vigilance on the east coast.

CAMACHO ASKS FOR WAR TODAY

Mexican Congress Expected To Grant Declaration With Little Debate.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY — President Manuel Avila Camacho appears before a joint session of congress today to ask for a declaration of war against Germany, Italy, and Japan.

There seemed no doubt that congress would respond affirmatively with very little debate. The country, the capital particularly, was seething with indignation over the torpedoing of two plainly marked and brightly illuminated Mexican merchant ships by Axis submarines.

As congress assembled for the session, which will loom large in Mexican history, the nation was unifying behind the president. Former President Plutarco Elias Calles, who spent years in exile because of disagreements with his successor, pledged his complete support as did Gen. Jose Escobar who led an unsuccessful revolt against Calles in 1929.

Mexico will become the 10th Central American republic to join the United Nations in war on the Axis and is, by far, the largest and richest.

Avila Camocho's message was to be accompanied by a number of measures designed to increase the armed forces and internal security.

Mexico's first war step was expected to be the confiscation of Axis property. There is approximately $50,000,000 in German capital invested in Mexico. Italian and Japanese nationals have $2,000,000 each invested.

Mayor Posts Police Guard, Locks Door to Keep N-J Reporter Out Barricades Self In Office to Bar Question.

Mayor W. J. Locke, who tried writing his own news yesterday, adopted a new technique to keep from being "misquoted" today.

He posted a guard of three police officers—two outside his office and one inside.

Besides that, as though he didn't quite trust the strong arm of the bluecoats to keep a News-Journal reporter from seeing him, he locked the door to his office.

The News-Journal reporter, not being a second-story man, didn't get into the mayor's office.

The situation arose when a telegram arrived from Washington informing the mayor that the city had been granted an A-10 priority rating for the purchase of a new fire pumper.

William F. Murray, News-Journal city hall reporter, was given the telegram but was denied admittance to interview the mayor to ask questions on the meaning of the rating. His main object was to learn what the A-10 rating meant and whether it would speed delivery of the pumper.

After waiting an hour, Murray rapped on the door of the mayor's office. A few minutes later, he entered the office and asked the mayor if he would answer a few questions about the fire pumper.

Locke refused to talk and ordered Ernest C. Fuller, police identification officer, whom he had summoned, to evict Murray. Murray left without any resistance.

Later Murray again attempted to reach the mayor. He was told he should submit his questions in writing. Murray declined to do so, stating that News-Journal reporters had had reasonable success in handling all news sources with verbal questions, and that the paper knew of no good reason for making an exception in the mayor's case. (Note: No other city official has ever accused Mur-

Not looking particularly happy about the whole thing, Patrolmen Robert Robnolt (left) and Roeliff Hout, stand guard outside the office of Mayor W. J. Locke, to make sure that no News-Journal reporter gets in to see the mayor. The picture doesn't show it, but the door was locked, too.

Another Mansfielder Added To 'Missing In Action' Roll

Another name has been added, it was learned today, to the list of Mansfield youths now in the service of their country who are officially listed in government records as "missing in action" and are presumed—in the absence of word of their death or injury—to be prisoners of the Japanese.

The latest serviceman from the city to be carried on lists of "missing in action" is Wilbur B. Linn, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Linn, 246 Rhein avenue.

The notification, received by Mr. and Mrs. Linn in a telegram from the Navy department, raises to nine the number of Mansfielders listed in the "missing" category and presumed to be held captive. He was the first navy man from the city to be so listed.

The others from Mansfield carried on official records as missing are six members of an Army tank battalion, an Army infantryman, and a Marine corps sergeant. A Mansfield woman's brother, from Port Clinton, and her husband's cousin, of Lacarne, O., also are members of the same tank battalion.

The telegram advising that Linn is missing was sent to his family

Corp. C. F. Strayer, in charge of the Mansfield station of the state highway patrol, today announced that he had received notice of transfer to the highway patrol post at Marietta.

Strayer will head the post at Marietta, his home town, after Monday.

Graduating from training school in 1935, Strayer was stationed at Marion, Portsmouth, Columbus, Newark, Cambridge and Mt. Vernon before taking charge of the Mansfield station more than three years ago.

C. W. Cale, now stationed at Salem, will replace Strayer at the Mansfield sub-station as acting corporal. Cale was formerly stationed in Mansfield as a patrolman.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Cecil Brown, CBS war correspondent, shocked some 2,000 listeners last night when he asserted that 60-year-old American men would be called for service before the war is over.

Brown, qualifying many of his statements with "I'm merely reporting to you—not preaching" made the declaration following a question from the audience as to "how long is the war going to last?"

Blood Donor Unit Arrives In City, 100 Contribute Today

Mansfield and Richland county residents began rolling up their sleeves today to make their first blood contribution toward the preservation of life among American soldiers, sailors and civilians in the war zones.

Approximately 100 persons were scheduled to each give one unit of blood this afternoon at the donation center in Bethany house of First Presbyterian church where the Cleveland Red Cross mobile blood donor unit will be stationed each afternoon through Saturday, Memorial day.

County Red Cross executives and members of the blood donor committee were among the first of the more than 300 persons who will contribute blood during the mobile unit's three-day stay in the city. The initial donors included L. W. Birch, county chairman; Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary; Bernard C. Hardy, first aid director; John H. Finefrock, blood donor chairman, and Mrs. Harry Cave, committee member.

Staffed by a corps of 12 doctors and nurses the mobile unit keeps eight cots occupied during the donation period held daily from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. Miss Marjorie Maul, a former Mansfield girl, is among the nurses. The unit will return to Cleveland each evening to return the blood donation to the laboratory for processing into dry plasma.

FIRE PUMPER OK'D FOR CITY

But Company Says 'No One Can Say When' It Will Be Sent to Mansfield.

Mansfield will get its new fire pumper, ordered two weeks ago from the Seagrave corporation in Columbus, but "no one can say when."

This is the interpretation given The News-Journal today by Seagrave sales officials after learning that the city had received an A-10 priority preference rating, the lowest possible, for its fire pumper and equipment.

Mayor William J. Locke received a telegram from Congressman J. Harry McGregor, informing him that the city had been given the A-10 rating. Mayor Locke refused to make any statement explaining what the A-10 rating means.

According to Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff, Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, W. T. Walker of the War Production office in Cleveland, and the Seagrave company, the A-10 rating means

Knox County Flier Safe After 45-Day New Guinea Siege

A Knox county youth was among members of a U. S. bombing crew which reached an undisclosed Australian base today, tattered and smiling, after spending 45 days in New Guinea's hinterlands where their plane was forced down.

Theirs was the longest period of brush wandering recorded among Allied fliers.

U. S. WARSHIP ESCAPES NEW SUB ATTACK

Blakely Reaches Port After Dash Through U-Boat Pack From Martinique.

21 SEAMEN LOSE LIVES

Axis Subs Destroy Five More Merchant Vessels as Sea War Flares.

(By Associated Press)

ST. LUCIA, British West Indies, May 27—(Delayed)—The United States destroyer Blakeley reached port here tonight after coming safely through an attack by a wolf pack of Axis submarines which precipitated a naval battle.

The Blakeley, cripled by a torpedo in a first submarine attack off Martinique Monday, was making the 20-mile run from Fort De France, where she put in Monday, to this island under her own power when the enemy attacked.

The detailed outcome of this battle, other than the Blakeley's escape, has not been disclosed.

It was indicated, however, that one or more German submarines had been destroyed by United States planes, but whether in this encounter or in earlier operations following the first attack on the Blakeley was not made clear.

Naval authorities have been aware that a submarine wolf pack was operating in this area; hence the multiple attack on the Blakeley was no surprise.

This made it impossible to identify any submarine destroyed as the one which made the fist attack Monday, when a torpedo launched from within French equatorial waters off Martinique crippled the destroyer, on regular patrol duty off the French island.

The Blakeley is known to have suffered loss of six men killed and 12 wounded (but the dispatch did not make clear whether in Monday's attack or the second one.)

Army Seeks Volunteers For Bigger Glider Force.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The army air forces today carried out plans for rapid expansion of its program for training glider pilots.

Volunteers were called for among many civilian pilots who heretofore have been ineligible for aviation cadet training, and from former army, navy and civilian flying trainees who have been eliminated before completion of training.

CAA officials said that thousands of volunteers are expected to enroll for the conditioning program. There are nearly 85,000 pilots in the United States who have private licenses. Many of these are not physically fit for active combat work in fast and powerful airplanes, but are regarded as logical material for glider pilots, the CAA said.

Civilian candidates for the glider schools must be between 18 and 36, and will be accepted at any army recruiting station.

"I'll be glad to get into the army and be able to buy cigarets for 10 cents a pack."

Blazing Tank Battle Rages Over Desert

Planes Join Fierce Armored Fight Near Tobruk Which Stalls Germans After 115 Mile Advance Across African Desert No-Man's Land.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—The spearhead of Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel's Libyan desert offensive was repulsed today in a blazing battle of tanks and planes after striking to within 15 miles of Tobruk, about 100 miles from the Egyptian border.

Communiques of Middle East headquarters and the RAF said the British had seized the advantage in the opening clash with the armored might of Rommel's desert fighters after they had driven to El Adem, about 15 miles southwest of Tobruk.

Another big tank battle was fought near Bir Hacheim, further south in the desert, where the British halted the 90-mile Axis advance yesterday.

RAF planes joined in halting the Axis drive, shooting down nine enemy planes, damaging others and destroying motor transports.

The Axis armored units repulsed in the battle southwest of Tobruk had advanced from 100 to 115 miles across the desert no-man's-land from their advance base.

The RAF planes, which for months during the stalemate between the desert forces raided enemy depots and supply lines far behind the front, also bombed enemy landing fields near Tmimi last night. German planes attacked forward British positions last night and two Junkers-88's and one Heinkel-111 were shot down. The RAF communique said four British planes were missing.

The imperial command earlier had said "the attack by enemy armored forces on our defenses at Bir Hacheim was repulsed with loss."

Enemy tanks approached our position south of El Gazala and suffered casualties (the communique continued), our position remained intact."

Halting the 90-mile Axis dash across the blistering desert, the British met two main enemy columns northeast of Bir Hacheim, an outpost about 50 miles southeast of El Gazala and a major British forward position.

The communique said the opposition forces clashed early yesterday morning and battled throughout the day.

"The Royal Air Force throughout the day vigorously attacked the enemy and supported our land forces continuously by attacking enemy transports successfully and intercepting enemy air attacks against our troops, it said.

There was no mention of the extent of losses inflicted on the Axis columns that swung south Tuesday from Tengeder and swept eastward toward the British south flank.

The communique said the engagements covered a wide area and that so far it was impossible to "assess the results."

The British command did not speculate whether the enemy attack was the spearhead of a general offensive he merely was a "feint" to divert British strength from the coastal area.

The Axis advance, which began Tuesday, was pointed in two directions — southeast toward Bir Hacheim and slightly northeast toward Alemhamza.

From Tengeder, an Axis outpost about 40 miles south of Mekili, Lieut. Gen. Walther Nehring, commander of Rommel's Afrika Korps, apparently swing southeastward in what the British interpreted as a "flanking move."

It was understood that the Imperial army had received suffi-

READY: U. S. Set to Supply Men, Arms for European Front

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, general commanding the United States army service of supply, asserted today that the United States stands ready to supply "men and materials on a large scale to a European battle-front" despite large commitments in Australia and India.

He said these movements of men and supplies could be accomplished despite the shipping shortage, and added that one of his main tasks in Britain would be to carry out "standardization of British and American fighting equipment to the limit."

General Somervell, here with other high officers of the United States Army and Navy, said American troops likely would be using British equipment on some scale, both in the air and on the ground.

Replying to questions about American production, he said "it will reach its peak this fall."

"The whole armament program is ahead of schedule—particularly tanks," he added.

He said he had been conferring with the admiralty, air ministry and war office as well as with British supply services.

DISGUISE: Nazis Use Soviet Insignia But New Thrust Fails

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Red army forces have halted the German counter-drive on their left flank below Kharkov where German troops wearing Russian uniforms and tanks and planes marked with Soviet emblems have been thrown into "confusion attacks," advices from the front said today.

At several points along the 25-mile Izyum and Barenkova sector, 70 miles south of Kharkov, the Russians were said to have seized the initiative after halting the enemy's eastward drive.

The Germans were said to have sent two Rumanian regiments into battle in an effort to throw back Soviet troops which crossed a strategically important river, but the Rumanians suffered heavy losses and retreated.

A dispatch to the Communist party newspaper Pravda said that German soldiers wearing Red army uniforms, Nazi tanks carrying Red flags and planes marked with Soviet red stars were used in an effort to confuse and disrupt the Russian forces.

The disguised Germans apparently sought to infiltrate into the Soviet rear.

Russian commandos, crossing a strategically important river in face of direct German cannon and machine gun fire, established a bridgehead on the enemy side, it was asserted.

Strongly consolidated, the Russians are now hammering at German positions west of the river, dispatches said.

It was indicated that this success was won in the hottest part of the Izyum-Barenkova sector, where the Red army had held the four routes the Japs have been driven back."

Some Chinese troops, he said, were encircled in an area five miles by three miles.

"Up to last night, both Kinhwa and Lanchi (15 miles to the northwest) were firmly in Chinese hands," the spokesman said.

The Chinese resistance at Kinhwa, he said, had led the Japanese to send units farther westward to attack Lungyu and Tangchi.

Bitter fighting was reported in the area surrounding Kinhwa, toward which the Japanese have sent a force estimated at 100,000 men. Enemy casualties were said to be mounting by the "thousands."

The Japanese lost 1,500 men Monday night when they struck a Chinese minefield on Kinhwa's outskirts, yesterday's Chungking communique revealed. It said this was the "second major attempt" to seize the vital railway center.

Declares Burma War Has Saved India

NEW DELHI, India—(U.P.)—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief of India, said today that India had been saved by the Allied defense in Burma from a dangerous situation and "we now look forward to the day when our strength here and elsewhere will make possible a counter offensive."

"Some day we shall refight the Burma campaign—the other way around," he promised.

At a press conference, Wavell explained that the Allied defense in Burma, in a delaying action against great odds, had afforded time for a substantial strengthening of India's defenses.

Praises Speed of Aid To Australia

MELBOURNE—(U.P.)—Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, commanding Allied ground forces in the southwest Pacific, revealed today that United States reinforcements were arriving at a "remarkable" rate and were daily strengthening the Allied ground forces.

He revealed that big scale troop movements inside Australia had been completed and that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ground forces were now well distributed throughout the continent.

Reviewing the Allied position after visiting an advanced Allied operational base, Blamey said the position of Australia had improved greatly.

"Our armies have increased their efficiency," he said, "and the assistance we are getting from the United States and our own production of war material give us heart for the task ahead."

Accuse Japs of Using Gas At Kinwha

CHUNGKING—(INS)—The Japanese were accused by a Chinese military spokesman today of using gas in their attempt to capture Kinhwa, provisional capital of Chekiang province.

Pilot Ford explained that the bomber was crippled by Japanese anti-aircraft fire after it "got what we went after at Rabaul." The craft limped away on only one engine, sometimes less than 100 feet above water.

"We came down a few miles inland on a marsh," said Ford. "The only clear spot we could find had a tree in the middle. The field was covered with cane grass, which is pretty good for skidding. We hit going more than 100 miles an hour, skidded around a hundred yards and wrapped a wing around the tree."

Food dropped to them by an Allied plane fell too far away to be recovered.

Ford, Disbro and Long waded waist-deep in swamp water to a river, found a native canoe and paddled to a coastal village.

"The natives were very friendly," said Disbro. "They gave us pawpaws, bananas and cocoanuts, and they did their best to take care of us for eight days."

A Church of England missionary and an Australian government representative then guided the fliers to another village, where the crew spent three weeks. They shot two 15-foot pythons for diversion. Picked up by another boat, they spent two more weeks in a second village before reaching this base.

Private Long disclosed he had a personal anxiety about April 20, when the stork was due to visit his Ohio home.

very little in speeding the delivery of a new fire pumper to Mansfield.

"That's little better than nothing," said Chief Seeburger. "The A-10 rating applies to maintenance and will do little in helping us to get a new pumper in the near future."

Director Wolff agreed that the rating was the lowest possible but he added the War Production board was still studying an application for a better rating.

WPB District Director Walker in Cleveland said that manufacturers fill orders according to the priority ratings and that the manufacturers had to fill all orders from A-1 through A-9 before the city would get its pumper.

Seagrave officials said that they held "lots of orders from the Army and other governmental units" with "high priority ratings" which would have to be filled before Mansfield got its pumper.

SEES TRAVEL RATION PLAN

Mansfield Passenger Agent Predicts Train Service Will Be Limited.

Predicting that rationing of passenger travel on railroads probably will go into effect this summer, H. H. Hoovler, passenger and freight agent for the Pennsylvania railroad in Mansfield, said today that pullman reservations already are being restricted here.

Reservations for pullman car space now must be claimed by 7 p m the day after they are made or they will be canceled, Hoovler said. Persons living outside Mansfield, however, may claim their reservations up to three days after they are made.

A government order also has done away with the practice of reserving space on several trains and then canceling all of the reservations except one, the agent said

While no instructions regarding restricted travel in coaches have been received here, Hoovler said the government is making a travel survey in several large cities in the middle west to determine whether travel rationing will be advisable.

It looks as if there will be rationing to prevent overtaxing of railroad facilities and maybe just to keep people at home more this summer Hoovler commented.

sinking ship crashed into one lifeboat which was about to pull away and dragged it and the men beneath the surface.

Defying the captain's order to abandon ship after the torepdo crashed into the freighter's starboard side, young Harrison struck by his gun, ignoring the entreaties of shipmates clambering into lifeboats.

"No," he shouted "I'm not going to leave until I get one shot at that sub, even if I have to go down with ship."

His shipmates said the decks were awash when they heard the shot. Seconds later the crippled freighter plunged prow first into the sea.

After the freighter went under, the submarine surfaced, and rescued two wounded seamen clinging to an overturned lifeobat The submarine commander ordered their wounds dressed, gave them cigarets, and as he took them to another lifeboat, said in perfect English:

"Are you American boys? Sorry we had to do this, but this is war."

Capt. A. M. Winnerlund, of Clinton, Wash., was among the men lost in the lifeboat. The survivors drifted 28 hours before they were picked up by a rescue vessel and landed at a gulf port.

21 Lose Lives As 5 More Ships Go Down

(By Associated Press)

At least 21 seamen lost their lives and 36 persons were missing in the latest outbreak of sea warfare officially disclosed which told of the destruction of five more merchant vessels in Atlantic waters by Axis torpedoes.

On the other side of the ledger, Brazilian sources said that in addition to two submarines recently reported sunk another undersea craft had surrendered to Allied forces.

The vessels lost by the United Nations included a medium-sized U. S merchant ship, a Greek freighter, a New England fishing vessel, a medium-sized British merchantman and a Dutch freighter.

The U. S. merchant vessel, which was sunk in the Gulf of Mexico, reported a loss of 20 seamen while 22 of the crew survived.

All 31 of the crew of the Greek cargo vessel were rescued after the ship was struck by a torpedo, sinking three hours later.

Dispatches from Willemstad, Curacao, said the Dutch freighter was attacked in the Caribbean.

The fishing craft was sunk by a submarine as it was proceeding to fishing banks off the Atlantic coast. One man of the 21-man crew was lost

The British merchantman was one of four torpedoed in a westbound convoy on the night of May 12, the survivors reported on landing at Boston.

Of the 72 crewmen and 10 passengers aboard the British vessel, 46 reached port. They expressed confidence that the other 36 had been picked up.

by Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the bureau of navigation. It read as follows.

"The Navy department exceedingly regrets to advise you that according to the records of this department your son, Wilbur Bush Linn, seaman first class, USN, was performing his duty in the service of his country in the Manila Bay area when that station capitulated.

"He will be carried on the records of the Navy department as missing pending further information. No report of his death or injury has been received and he may be a prrisoner of war. It will probably be several months before definite official information can be expected concerning his status. Sincere sympathy is extended to you in your anxiety and you are assured that any report received will be communicated to you promptly."

Linn graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and was a member of the First Lutheran church, where he was active in affairs of the Luther League. He worked at the Page Dairy company, in Mansfield, where his father is employed, before enlisting in the Navy. Entering service on Oct. 9, 1940, he received his training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station before starting active service. After being assigned to duty in Hawaii for five months, he was transferred to the Philippines.

The last message received from him by his family was a letter written in February, which arrived on April 1. In it he wrote that he was "feeling fine." Wilbur has one sister, Kathryn, 20.

RAISE DELAYED

Army, Navy Must Wait Month at Least for Pay Boost.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Soldiers and sailors will have to wait another month for that pay raise congress has been considering.

July 1 seemed to be the most likely date that the increases will become effective, provided legislative technicalities are ironed out before then and provided the house and senate can decide whether buck privates and apprentice seamen should get $42 or $50 a month.

The house yesterday rejected, 332 to 31, a senate-house conference report on the pay bill and instructed its conferees to insist on an increase to $50 a month. The conferees had recommended the senate's figure, $42 a month. The men now get from $21 to $40 a month. Senate conferees are divided over what the final action will be.

stoutly against one of the most determined German attacks of the war.

Russia's noon communique said:

"During last night our troops operating in the Kharkov area consolidated positions and in some sectors took up more favorable positions. In the Izyum-Barenkova sector our troops fought stubborn battles against enemy tanks and infantry. In other sectors there was nothing of importance."

Marshal Timoshenko threw hundreds of new tanks, which had been held in reserve, into the lines at Kharkov and the Izyum-Barenkova sector to the south.

The midnight-communique said that in small local actions in three sectors the Russians killed upwards of 2,700 and destroyed 20 tanks and nine field guns.

Russians Raid Eastern Germany

BERLIN—(German Broadcast Recorded by (U.P.) at New York)—The high command reported today that "harassing raids" by a number of enemy airplanes (presumably Russian) had caused the sounding of an air raid alarm in East Prussia.

(The communique gave no further details, but indicated that the Red air force had resumed attacks deep in German-held territory for the first time this year. Last year, Russian planes occasionally struck deeply into Germany, causing alarms as far as Berlin.)

The communique said that "some bombs were dropped causing slight damage" in East Prussia.

ray of "misquoting" him and so far as News-Journal editors could recall, not since the late Calvin Coolidge has even a president of the United States insisted on written questions.)

When Murray attempted to get a telephone call through to Mayor Locke to ask an interview, the telephone operator at the city hall refused to place the call, saying "it would cost me my job."

After Fuller had escorted Murray out of the mayor's office, two policemen appeared in the corridor outside the reception room. They were Robert E. Robnolte and Roeliff R. Hout.

Murry insisted that he could not be barred from the reception room of a public building. The two officers then moved into the reception room, permitting Murray to enter, but posted themselves in front of the door leading to the mayor's office, effectively barring entrance.

Another patrolman, Arthur Conrady, entered the reception room and motioned to Robnolte and Hout to return to headquarters. While they were gone, Murray made another attempt to see the mayor but found that the mayor, though alone, had locked himself in his office and refused to answer the telephone.

Robnolte returned to the reception room as a single guard. Altogether Mayor Locke used four of the nine city patrolmen on duty to held guard his office.

Murray and one of the patrolmen who had been standing guard, retired together to enjoy a cup of coffee.

"Man wants but little here below"—and is lucky if he gets it.

Item says: "Six million men in America are too poor to marry."—but it doesn't tell how many of them are single.

It is claimed as a recent discovery that rubber can be made from alcohol—but even in the old days every saloon had a bouncer.

More About Those 'X' Cards

A WEAK spot in the gasoline rationing program, as it has been made operative in eastern states, has come to light in connection with the "X" cards, which entitle holders to make unlimited purchases.

Purpose of rationing is being defeated, in some instances, it is revealed, by holders of "X" cards not only supplying their own needs but also buying gasoline for relatives, friends and neighbors who would otherwise be restricted to a few gallons per week.

The plan, as related, is for an unscrupulous holder of an "X" card to have his gas tank filled every day—or a couple of times a day, for that matter—and then to siphon a part into the tank of a relative, friend or neighbor, as need may arise.

Quite simple—if all parties concerned are sufficiently unpatriotic to have no scruples against it—but a condition that should be corrected before gasoline rationing becomes general.

Mexico as a 'Friendly Neighbor'

ONE of the most reassuring things in these perilous times is the loyal co-operation of Mexico with the United States. Mexico is in no sense a "vassal" of this country, but a fully independent neighbor treated with complete respect. This decent attitude on the part of our government and people, pursued until it is not a mere transient whim but a settled policy, has had the natural result. The Mexican government and people, under President Avila Camacho, now trust and co-operate with the United States more closely than ever before.

The full fruit of this confidence is seen in the association of Mexico with this country in the big war. And not of Mexico alone, but of the great republic of Brazil and nearly all the other Latin-American republics. Argentina, which has always been as much European as American, still goes her own way, but apparently because of boss rule rather than the free will of its people, and it would not be surprising if that situation were changed before long.

Linked Old and New Mansfield

ANOTHER link between the old and new Mansfield passes from the scene with the death of Sidney A. Foltz, whose public and business career creditably covered a period of more than fifty years of this community's industrial development and civic progress.

From early boyhood in his father's Main street hardware store, through a half dozen years as deputy in the probate court, and in his later long association with the Mansfield street railway system and interurban lines, Mr. Foltz was actively identified with an important era of Mansfield's advancement, particularly in the field of transportation, in which he became well-informed and efficient.

In more recent years, marked by less robust health, "Sid" continued devoted to his task of management of the Walpark building, but had fewer public contacts than in earlier years, but the serious concern which many people expressed over his illness during the past several weeks evidenced the spread of his friendships throughout the city.

Safeguarding Industry Against Fire

THE National Board of Fire Underwriters recently published a booklet entitled, "Safeguarding Industry, a War-Time Necessity." In that booklet it says: "Every factory, warehouse or other institution, great or small, is part of the nation's assets. If it be destroyed at a time when the nation needs every ounce of her vitality, her ability to win the war will be lessened in a proportionate degree."

In short, a little machine shop is as much a part of the war effort as the greatest plane or tank factory. Little business is just as vital to winning the war as big business. And every possible care must be taken in protecting both from destruction.

The booklet describes fire hazards and the means of correcting them, and it will be sent to any interested organization or individual who will write to the board, 85 John street, New York City. It deals with protecting against sabotage as well as against "ordinary" fires. It should be "must" reading for every industrial manager, and everyone who has anything to do with fire defense.

Foolish To Hoard Money

THAT queer mental quirk which causes some people to indulge in the foolish and dangerous practice of hoarding money in their homes, safety deposit boxes, or other places of concealment, is again in evidence and it is estimated that $2,000,000,000 in currency has been taken out of circulation and hidden away by owners.

The government's concern about this hoarded money is its effect on the war effort, as this withheld currency serves no good purpose for either its owners or the treasury department.

Emphasis is being placed on the advantage of investing earnings in interest-bearing war bonds, and this also applies to money in currency form, although not to money already in bank savings accounts.

Self interest has, in some instances, resulted in at least a few persons hoarding tires, sugar, and other scarce commodities, without regard for the general welfare, but there is no excuse whatever for an intelligent person to hoard money, which, with even mild inflation, will have a depreciated rather than an augmented purchasing power.

Gold teeth are helping to win the war. Nearly half a million dollars' worth of gold fillings have been turned in. How about old gold spectacles?

Sighting victory "just over the ridge" is at least a slight variation from the old "prosperity just around the corner" formula.

It is being carefully explained that Martinique is not a communique about Martin bombers.

THE STORY-TELLER

More U-Boat Destroyers Needed

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — While the decision has not been made, it is highly unlikely that President Roosevelt will revise upward his demands of construction of merchant ships. The classifications, using precious steel which will be raised, are aimed at destroying submarines rather than replacing losses from submarines.

It will be noted that most of the ships sent to the bottom by submarines have not been in convoys—nor in the patrolled lanes. That is one reason for the gasoline shortage in the eastern states. Obviously there have been no convoys of tankers bringing oil from gulf ports to the east. The only important protection afforded along that long coastwise route has been by airplane spotting. It is true that this has resulted in the sinking of some undersea boats, but it has not proved very sound insurance for the tankers.

In contrast, the supply ships transporting our men and supplies to the various theaters of war, from the Arctic coast of Russia to Australia and all way stations, have suffered hardly at all. Not a single transport, as this is written, and very few supply ships, have been destroyed.

THIS is the logic behind the president's present thought that it is better, for the time being, to put any surplus steel that may be available, over and above the objectives already laid down, into destroyers, torpedo boats, corvettes, etc., rather than into merchant ships.

One destroyer, corvette or torpedo boat may destroy a submarine which otherwise might sink a dozen merchants ships. Of the three types none uses MORE steel than a single merchant ship; the corvette uses considerably less, and the torpedo boat very little indeed.

Many of these fast little craft are using plywood for their bottoms. When they hit anything at terrific speed the plywood gives, and later springs back, whereas steel, hit with the same force would result in the destruction of the boat.

THERE is another argument for building more submarine destroyers rather than U-boat fodder. That involves human life, but it is not purely a humanitarian theory. Indeed, while it looks to the saving of lives, it is very utilitarian indeed.

This is that when a merchant ship is sent to the bottom there is frequently a loss of life. Nothing comparable to when a ship is lost in a naval engagement, for as a result of present war conditions frequently the majority of a crew of a warship is lost. (So far we have not heard of a single survivor from the cruiser Houston, lost in the battle of Java. There was not a single soul saved from an Australian cruiser that was sunk some weeks before that battle.)

But too many trained seamen in the merchant service are being killed. And they are very difficult to replace. So it is quite conceivable that one corvette or destroyer might save the lives of a considerable number of merchant seamen, as well as merchant ships.

All this is of interest in view of the administration's view—sharply contested by some critics—that the construction of merchant shipping is actually as well on schedule (the schedule of the president's demands) as is any one of the other categories.

At any rate there is no prospect of boosting the proposals for merchant ship construction. There will be increased construction of destroyers and corvettes if there is the steel available to fabricate them.

Nix on Lady Soldiers

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M GOING to lose a lot of fans by this article. That saddens me, for my fans have become part of my heart in these long years of talking together. And yet I wouldn't be worth the space I take if I didn't tell the truth as I see it. And what I'm going to talk about today needs a heap of telling. It's about all our able-bodied women citizens leaving their homes, parking the kids with gramma, and becoming a part of the national army.

Yes, I know it listens lovely. And some of us are certainly going to be an eyeful in the trick pants they've devised. But a lot of illustrious janes are endorsing it as well as some pompous pappas who ought to know better. But as for me, I think it's the doggondest nonsense I ever heard, and I've heard plenty.

I'm not against the girl workers in factories, nor the brave nurses who are risking their lives and young loveliness in crossing the seas. Nor against any other woman who has a necessary place in this grim business of defense. But I am against women soldiers in any form, and if they ever draft me they'll have to dig me out of a cave first. If that be treason, bring on your muskets, boys.

For I was bred to believe, and I still do believe, that the greatest thing a woman can do for herself and her nation is to make a home. That home is the heart of the nation. Without it we're just a bunch of cut-rate shops and a municipal dump.

Why are we pouring our millions into this war? Why are we sacrificing our boys? For what are we making every conceivable sacrifice? We are making it for the American home. We are making it that our children may know from the day of their birth the beauty and generosity of a democracy....that our old folks may have a haven when the night shuts down....that our hard-pressed fathers and mothers may find peace and joy and pride in their working years.

And you can't do that by parking the kids at gramma's and drilling in a trick uniform, sisters.

I admit that staying at home and being a plain wife and mother isn't the snap which most of our husbands suppose it is. I've done it and I can speak with authority. It is, to the contrary, a pain in the neck most of the time and every lively lady longs to escape it. I don't blame them. I have longed to escape it too, but I'm thanking God now that through sickness and poverty I always managed to keep a home for the little fellow who's gone.

There are millions of little lads like him in this land, and tiny, pig-tailed lassies. However the war turns out, they are going to grow up in a cruelly disordered age, beset on a every side by vicious hazards. At the most they can only have a few years of innocent, childish joy and the only ones who can give it to them are their mothers.

So that's why I am against this idea of a feminine army. We don't need drafting; we're drafted already for a greater cause in a harder fight. We aren't the forgotten ones of this war, we women. We are the first line of defense, superseding Navy, Army or Air Corps....WE'RE THE SHOCK TROOPS OF CIVILIZATION. AND I VEHEMENTLY SUGGEST THAT WE STAY IN OUR FRONT-LINE TRENCHES.

Production of Synthetic Rubber Retarded By Experts' Bickering

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—As the tires on your car wear smoother, you are wondering what has happened to the ambitious plans for production of synthetic rubber announced so reassuringly by Jesse Jones months ago.

Well the unfortunate answer is: "There just ain't going to be more rubber for civilian use until 1944."

Reason is the big war program, the long time required to build factories, but also the inexcusable bickering of rubber experts over contracts and processes—especially over the use of alcohol or petroleum as a base for synthetic rubber.

And behind this is a basic three-way struggle among (1) the oil companies, (2) the farm belt, which wants to turn its surplus grain into alcohol, and (3) the big eastern alcohol companies which don't want to jeopardise their investments in Cuban molasses as a source of alcohol.

To get the full picture, examine the background of the government's two leading rubber experts. E. R. Weidlein, advisor to Jesse Jones and the Rubber Reserve corporation, comes from the Mellon Institute of Pittsburgh, with a big business viewpoint and an oil company bias as to whether petroleum or alcohol is the better raw material for synthetic rubber.

The other chief rubber expert is Arthur Newhall, co-ordinator of rubber for the WPB, formerly with B. F. Goodrich, and indoctrinated with the viewpoint of the big rubber companies. Newhall was pointedly criticized by the Truman committee this week.

Now take a specific example of delays in rubber.

Smuggling An Inventor.

A POLISH inventor, Stanislaus Szuckiewicz, invented a process for making butadiene (ingredient for synthetic rubber) from alcohol and had a plant in full scale operation in Poland for two years. So two enterprising young OPA economists, William S. Lacy and Lawrence Brown, arranged to smuggle Szuckiewicz out of Poland, on the pretense of a trip to Brazil, then brought him to the United States.

But after the inventor had taken out a patent and begun operations in a department of agriculture laboratory in Peoria, Ill., the OPM slapped a secrecy order on his process. Supposedly this was to protect the government's interest. Actually, it prevented a commercial company from developing this type of rubber.

All this was before Pearl Harbor.

Weeks passed. The Japs struck. . . . British rubber resources in Malaya were lost. . . . Dutch supplies in the East Indies were about to be lost.

Finally, on February 14, young Lawrence Brown got conservative Mellon Institute's Weidlein to admit he was not interested in the formula, and persuaded him to lift the secrecy order. As soon as this was done, a deal was made between Szuckiewicz and Publicker Commercial Alcohol company in Philadelphia—with Lacy and Brown sitting in to be sure that the contract would serve the purpose of the government.

Rubber From Alcohol.

THIS was accomplished on March 4. Publicker agreed to build a pilot plant to make butadiene out of alcohol—using its own money. Jesse Jones had loaned $650,000,000 to the big oil companies to make rubber, but refused this little company.

By this time the big companies had not even started construction of their post-Pearl Harbor plants, yet Publicker now has been producing butadiene in its laboratory for six weeks. Yet when Publicker's president came to Washington and told Weidlein and Newhall, "I'm ready to deliver butadiene," they asked for blueprints.

"Blueprints!" he cried. "This is no experiment. We are actually in production."

Yet the government's rubber experts put him off. They would not even give him an order.

All this leaked out to the senate last week and midwest senators are raising cain. They are pressing Jesse Jones for an answer to the question: "Why did you allocate $650,000,000 for making rubber from petroleum, and not a penny for the alcohol process?"

And the senate is also pressing both Rubber Reserve and WPB for an answer to the question: "Why do your 'experts' close their minds to new ideas?"

Stork Trouble.

HAVING a baby in over-flowing Washington these days is no easy matter.

The hospitals are as crowded as the hotels, and obstetricians are advising their patients to have their babies at home.

To meet demands for more space, one big women's hospital has eliminated all but one of its waiting rooms and converted them into wards. As a result, prospective fathers have to shift for themselves in the corridors or on the lawn during their vigil.

Note: No one has yet suggested a ration system on babies in the capital.

Henderson's Warning.

LEON HENDERSON, price administrator, told the house ways and means committee a lot more during his secret testimony than he afterwards disclosed to newsmen. Here are some items which weren't made public.

Henderson predicted that if the current levels of earnings are maintained, the total national income this year will approximate 117 billion dollars, or 25 billions more than in 1941.

On the other hand, due to the enormous war production demands, the supply of consumer goods will be 26 per cent less than last year.

This wide disparity between purchasing power and available consumer goods, Henderson warned, is the great inflationary "explosive" factor. With a lot more money in people's pockets than supplies on which to spend it, a competitive situation develops that may set off a catastrophic price runaway unless drastically controlled.

17-Billion Excess.

ILLUSTRATING this problem, Henderson pointed out that about 31 billions of the estimated $117-billion national income will be absorbed by taxes and savings, leaving 86 billions in spendable money. However, there will be only 69 billions of consumer commodities.

This 17-billion excess, he declared, is what must be kept in check in order to prevent it from setting in motion an inflationary spiral that would smash the nation's economic system.

Tough as this problem is, Henderson predicted that the situation will be even worse in 1943. He estimated that by next year purchasing power will be three times greater than in 1932 while the supply of consumer goods will be only the same as in that year, the pit of the depression.

The price administrator told the committee that the only way disastrous inflation can be averted is by the most stringent government controls.

He said he fully realized that such measures as rationing and price ceilings might cause bootlegging and "blackmarkets." But he expressed the belief that patriotic public opinion would powerfully militate against such lawbreaking.

"In England," Henderson pointed out, "bootlegging of food and other scarce commodities is causing so much public resentment that many are demanding that those who buy or sell on the 'black market' be taken out and shot."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—They live in little cork-frail boats that haunt the bay. Their friends are the gulls. Without them the Port of New York could not function. Theirs is the most grueling apprenticeship of any people in New York. They are the harbor pilots who take the big ships safely past the reefs and shallows that lie in wait for the venturesome and the unwary.

Before the war drew a curtain over harbor shipping it was one of the sights of any sailing party to watch the pilot drop away from the ship, into a little dinghy that bobbed uncertainly in the swells and the current, and be rowed to the pilot's boat, a modernized junk that anchored permanently in the harbor.

THESE pilots lead hazardous lives. If the seas were too rough, they had to stay with the ship, which meant an unprogrammed voyage to Southampton, or Capetown, or wherever the ship was destined. Sometimes pilots are lost in the rough seas. Their fees are governed by the tonnage of the ships they ferry in and out of the water approaches to the port. For a luxury liner, or a battleship, the fees come high. For lesser craft, the cost is not so much.

Some years ago two battleships attempted to navigate the harbor, en route to the Brooklyn Navy yard, without the benefits of professional pilots. They came to grief on the mud banks of Manhattan's unpredictable watery approaches. Since then no ship enters or departs without a professional pilot being aboard.

Today the New York and New Jersey Pilots' association is as important to shipping as the bottoms that carry the cargoes to the ports of the world. It is a federal law that professional pilots man all craft entering or leaving New York.

THESE pilots are "made," not born. It takes a decade of gruelling toil for a man to become a full-fledged pilot. He works as an apprentice for nearly ten years at no more than $40 a month, shining brass knobs, swabbing decks, doing small chores. In time he is permitted to accompany the real pilots, to watch and observe. If he is observing, if he is patient and, above all, if he has mastered every nook and cranny of the port, its traps and shoals, its banks and pitfalls, so that his mind has become a relief map of the harbor and he is able to answer questions pertaining to these conditions automatically, he may come into full pilotship on his own. This entitles him to pilot small ships through the harbor, ships of not more than 16- or 18-foot draft. Thereafter annually he is examined and re-examined by the governing authorities, so that gradually his license extends to larger ships. Full pilotship comes often when the beginner has grown wizened and leather-cheeked by the wind, grey and old. Twenty years is not too great a price to pay, in the opinion of veteran pilots, for the privilege of piloting the great transatlantic liners and battleships into and out of the port of New York.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 28, 1934, marks the birth of the Dionne quintuplets to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne in Canada. Dr. Allan R. Dafoe delivered the babies, all of whom were born within a half hour in the log farm home of their parents. The aggregate weight of the babies at birth was 13 pounds 6 ounces.

A Farmer's Diary

School Is Out!

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE VILLAGE school is out. Each morning we heard the bell, from across the hill—but today, at the regular time, that peculiar resounding call was still. Through all the months of the school year great loaded orange buses have found their way along the winding gravel roads that curve down into town from among the hills. In the village, school age children, trooped by twos and threes and even by sixes and sevens along the sidewalks, converging at the place of learning.

Since Horace Mann was the pioneer in public education in Massachusetts first, then in Ohio, he was perhaps the greatest pioneer of democracy. For in the public schools of our village, and every other, the children of all classes meet on equal footing. The merchant's boy finds a pal in the son of a valley farmer; the minister's son lingers until the bus arrives, to greet the farmer's daughter; the blackhaired Italian boy and the towheaded Swede are pitcher and catcher on the same team.

Lowly birth and childhood poverty will not bar any resourceful ambitious lad (or lass) from a position of honor. The school bell welcomes all alike. "America is the only country where your life is what you make it and if you want something badly enough you can probably get it." (Larry Allen, first newspaper correspondent with British fleet.)

For the "last day" my wife prepared picnic lunches for both the boys. Skinless wieners, marshmallows for toasting, cakes and buns. The oldest boy cut forked sticks from the slope, to be in readiness for cooking his food. In their excitement, the bus appeared on the barn bridge before anyone was ready. I waved it on without them, and took them into town myself a half hour later.

I watched them walk together down "School Alley," the girl lithe and tall, the two boys struggling to keep abreast. I saw them jog southward onto the school grounds, grassy and shaded with modern facilities of every kind.

The little country school their father walked through fields three miles to reach was not equipped so well. One small room—poor ventilation. A water pail on a shelf in one corner—a common drinking cup. Dust, like fog, when the teacher swept out at evening. We wrote our names with thin forefinger on the desks in the morning. Winter wind blew through chinks in the west wall, eddying currents crept through the cold floor. The younger ones roasted near the large coal stove in the center, while about the edges the older pupils shivered.

No automobiles—no indoor toilets—no motion pictures—no radio. An old oil lamp to study by, at home.

I am proud the children of our day have more.

You can turn to JONES for the finest makes of every item for the home. In pianos which are still available it's STEINWAY - BALDWIN - LESTER, names of makers you can trust.

WARTIME NEEDS

CHANGE GREYHOUND SCHEDULES

EFFECTIVE WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3RD...

Greyhound buses will operate on new wartime schedules. This change in service is being made in order to cooperate to the fullest extent with the wartime plans of the Office of Defense Transportation. The purpose is to make every bus work full time — keeping vital traffic on the move.

America's war program has the right of way! The great majority of the people Greyhound is carrying today and intends to carry efficiently are selectees traveling to examination centers, fighting men on leave or furlough, war workers moving to their jobs, businessmen traveling on essential work. The trips they take are necessary to keep the war program rolling.

With increased service demanded for war production areas—and little increase in buses available—it is necessary to divert equipment to routes where it is most needed.

Many peacetime features are discontinued. Operating speeds are somewhat reduced. Express and Limited schedules are eliminated entirely. Second sections of regular schedules are being eliminated unless the buses carry a sufficient number of passengers. Greyhound schedules will be combined with those of other bus companies, when necessary.

Conservation of rubber is all-important—and Greyhound is taking every possible step to increase the big savings already effected. Today buses use only a fraction as much rubber as private cars per passenger, per mile—and they average more than 40,000 miles per tire.

We hope that these wartime changes will not cause you inconvenience, crowding or delay. But if you don't find travel as comfortable and easy as in normal times, please make allowances! The war effort comes first with Greyhound as it does with you!

You Can Help

by getting information about the new schedules before you travel — taking as little baggage as possible — traveling before or after the mid-summer rush period — taking your trip on mid-week days, leaving seats on week-ends for soldiers and war workers.

CHAPTER XXI

"What people?" said Stone.

"I thought first I'd go to the post office, and find out where the late Mr. Webb had lived. Also, I'd discover the hideout of his lawyer, if any. And by that time I count on having made myself so charming that I can ask anything I want to know. Like who are the nearest neighbors or friends of the deceased, and how the gentleman was held in the villagers' estimation."

Stone said, "You'll probably find servants at the house, old retainers, possibly, and I'll trust you to make good with them."

"Yes, I daresay. Brand, what shall I tell the lawyer of your attitude? Shall I say if the miss-girl can be found you are willing to marry her, if she is willing?"

"Yes." Brand spoke heavily. "Yes, say that. I've thought it over, and if they find her, I think it my duty to go through the marriage ceremony, if she wants it, and if it can be arranged for me. Then I could make a will, leaving the money to her, or—if I get out of here, free—I would let her divorce me."

"Well, you're banking on the fact that you're an undesirable husband," Bliss observed. "But I'll tell them that so far as I find it necessary. Perhaps they've already got the girl. She might be willing to appear now, though disinclined to go there while the old man was alive."

"I'll leave it all to you, Clarence," Brand sighed wearily.

The confinement and anxiety were beginning to tell on him, and though brave, he was losing weight and buoyancy.

"Brace up, Buddy," Bliss said. Soon he had to leave.

"Mighty fine chap, Bliss," Fleming Stone said, after he had gone, and then turned Herrick's attention to other matters.

"That valet of McCleod's is a smart one," he said. "He is sure you're not the one the police ought to have here."

"Yes, Dickson knows a lot about people and things."

"He has sized up the situation between you and Mrs. McCleod—"

"Look here, Stone, we're not going to gossip, are we?"

"Yes, if it's necessary to our work."

"I'm with you! and I'm sorry."

"Well, Dickson told me he saw you and the lady in the small elevator and in the hall where the elevator starts from."

"Yes, I glimpsed him there in the hall. Then Alma came between us, and I thought he went away."

"No; I think he remained watching you two. For he told me frankly that you were not to blame, that she was lavishing her blandishments on you. He didn't use those long words, but I got his idea."

"Yes, it's the truth. I suppose there's no reason why I shouldn't admit it. She was using all her arts to induce me to make love to her. I hate that sort of thing, and though I had admired her before that, she lost all charm for me then and there. But I didn't kill her."

"Of course, you didn't, and with your—well, a little more energetic help, we're going to prove it."

"You're right, we are!" said Brand Herrick emphatically.

Clarence Bliss carried out his schedule as planned, and next morning after a good breakfast at a Lansing hotel, he found a taximan to take him to Ebbitt's Corners. The driver seemed amazed that any one so smart-looking as Bliss should want to go to that blot on the landscape.

"You know folks there?" he asked.

"Do you?" Bliss countered.

"Well, I did, but he's gone now. Old Jason Webb, he was, and a good man but a poor citizen."

"As how?" They were now on their way.

"Oh, gruff, grouchy, and grumbly. Nobody liked him. It was his own fault. But rich! Golly, that man had the spondulics!"

"If he had no friends, what will become of his wealth?"

"I can't say for sure. There's all sorts of reports about that. Some say he left it all to the place, The Corners, you know. It ain't even a village, but if they got Webb's money, they could have trustees and a president and be a village, and call it Ebbittsville. That's what they're hopin' for."

"And what's against it?"

"I don't rightly know. But there's some heirs they can't find, or somethin' of that sort. You goin' to look it over?"

"Maybe," Bliss said. "Drive on."

Reaching the hamlet, he asked to be put out at the post office, and was landed in front of a small grocery shop. He thanked the driver, paid him handsomely and dismissed him.

Bliss went into the little place where, in the rear, he found a tiny post office. It was in charge of a brisk-looking, middle-aged woman, who told him she was Mrs. Binney, postmistress.

Smiling engagingly, Bliss told her he was a stranger who wanted a little information about the town.

"Who are you, and what are you after, Mister?"

"My name is Bliss, and I have come from New York to attend the funeral of Mr. Webb."

"For the land sake! You a relation of his?"

"I represent a relative of the Webb family. Now, Mrs. Binney, if you will please tell me where the Webb house is, and also who is Mr. Webb's lawyer, and where he lives, I won't trouble you any further."

"Mrs. Binney's attitude had changed.

"You don't mean it!" she exclaimed. "Say, what do you know about that will of his? They say it's unlegal!"

"Now, why would a smart man like Mr. Webb leave a will that was not perfectly all right? I expect there's a lot of gossip around here."

"There is that! Say, won't you tell me about it? Comin' from New York—how did you hear of it 'way off there?"

"There was a letter from here—you must have seen it—being in charge here."

"Yes, I saw a letter that went to New York City, and I knew it was in Lawyer Vail's writing, but that's all I knew about it, and I never mentioned it to anybody. . . . What do you want of Lawyer Vail? He's the Webb lawyer, and he lives right across the street."

"I want to see someone in authority, concerning the Webb estate. And I would rather go to the house, before I see the lawyer. Who is in charge there? Some relatives?"

"No, sir. Jason Webb had no relatives that he recognized. At his house, you'll find Sarah Holden in charge. She's been in charge some twenty years or more."

"She took good care of him, then?"

"Yes, her and her daughter too, and her granddaughter."

"Are they all at the Webb house?"

"That they are, and likely to stay there. For I've heard that the house and grounds is all left to Sarah."

"I think I'll go to see Mrs. Sarah—what's her other name?"

"Holden, Sarah Holden. And her daughter is Sarah too, she married a Bostwick."

"Is he there, too?"

"Yes, he is. And their daughter, Ethel; she's housemaid and waitress. They all have their jobs, 'ceptin' Jim Bostwick, he just loafs around and pretends he's workin'."

"Then Mr. Webb took care of all these people—"

"He did, and he was mighty glad to, for they were all good to him, and if they'd left him he couldn't have found anybody else to put up with his cantankerousness."

"He was not an amiable man, then?"

"Amiable? If a Maine coon cat is amiable, if a bear with a sore head is amiable, if a hungry Bengal tiger is amiable, then I guess you maybe might call Jason Webb amiable."

"Yet Sarah Holden has put up with his ill-temper for all these years!"

"Well, who wouldn't, if it meant house and home for her and all her family? But she ain't the loser by it. Near's I can make out, she gets the Webb house and enough to keep it a-goin' and I'll say she deserves it."

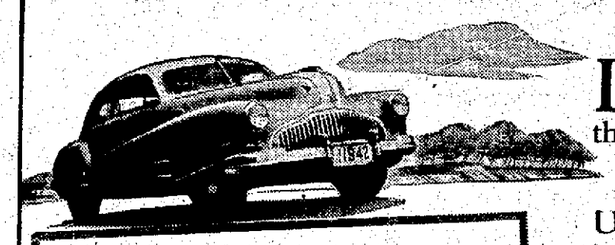
Really NEED a New Car?

Liberalized rules may let you get one



IF your work is connected directly or indirectly with the prosecution of the war, you may be eligible to buy a new car—right now.

Under newly liberalized rationing rules it is easier than most people think to replace cars now in use with brand-new, long-lived, gas-thrifty 1942 Buicks.

Maybe you can wash out worries about tire-life by starting afresh with a complete new set—tires that will last longer, if they're on a Buick, because new Broadrim wheels both ease the ride and lengthen tire-life.

Remember, the 1942 models your Buick dealer now has ready for immediate delivery were built to serve you through the duration and beyond.

They are wartime tough, durable beauties built to last, built to go a long, long way with a minimum of upkeep.

So if you're eligible, you may be money ahead getting a new Buick now rather than trying to make an old car "do."

Why not drop in, talk it over and see if the new liberalized rules do not entitle you to a new automobile now?

Who is Eligible to Buy a New Car?

There are seven major classifications for persons eligible to buy new cars under basic rationing rules.

These include persons engaged in the production of war materials or in the prosecution of the war directly or indirectly physicians, nurses, clergymen, veterinarians; car-owners engaged in public service, such as fire departments, public health, highway maintenance, etc.; owners of taxicabs and other means of transportation; farmers; newspaper wholesalers; and traveling salesmen in certain fields.

Your Buick dealer will be very glad to help you determine whether you come under the rules of eligibility. He also will be glad to help you fill the proper applications.

Don't guess about your eligibility—see your Buick dealer now and make sure.

If you're eligible for a new car—

Better Buy Buick!

PARENTS AND TEACHERS HAVE COUNCIL MEETING

Pledge Adopted at National Convention Given By Mrs. I. W. Basinger; Panel Discussion on "Traffic Safety" Presented.

WHEN the Mansfield Council of Parents and Teachers met at John Simpson Junior high school last evening, Mrs. I. W. Basinger, vice president of the Ohio Congress and delegate to the national convention which was held recently in San Antonio, Tex., told about the convention. She revealed that military training is now given in high schools throughout Texas.

It is the following: To remember with reverence and love, the ideals of our founders who cherished above all else the welfare of the whole child; to continue with zeal and devotion our efforts to secure and preserve the good life for all children even in the face of war and disaster; to persevere in discovering new avenues of service and help to youth; to strive forever forward, counting no effort wasted that brings us a little nearer to the ideal of a world founded on the principle of human brotherhood; to protect our children against all the dangers of war, whether those dangers be physical, mental or spiritual; and to keep the faith delivered unto us by our forefathers who hewed this America out of the wilderness and dedicated it to liberty, justice, happiness and truth for every human being."

WASH WHITE SHOE LACES

A pair of shoe laces may seem a very trivial thing to conserve, but those with metal tips are pretty precious these days. Instead of throwing them away when they have lost their freshness, give them a soap and water bath. Use a small hand brush to scrub them with lukewarm soapy water. After several rinsings, squeeze out the water between two fingers and hang over a rod to dry.

This is a particularly useful little thrift in connection with white shoe laces and pastel ones. The laces can be pressed with a moderate iron if desired, but this is not necessary. Avoid having the iron touch the metal tips as the heat may remove the enamel coating.

Ruth Chapter Has Dessert-Bridge

Dessert-bridge was enjoyed by members of Ruth Chapter Circle in the Masonic temple at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday. Mrs. Grace Hout and her committee were in charge. Dessert was served at a long table attractively decorated with pink, blue and yellow appointments, dainty maypoles and lighted tapers.

Mrs. Hout, president, conducted the business meeting. Red Cross sewing and bridge were the group activities. Prize in contract bridge was won by Mrs. Mae Goss. Mrs. Alice Swigart received the award in auction bridge. Next meeting will be an Eastern Star picnic at North lake park on June 23.

Committee will be Mrs. Ethel Mayberry, Mrs. Mary Carter and Mrs. Elizabeth Hale.

RUTH CIRCLE CLASS.

Mrs. Sherman Stone entertained 12 members of the Ruth Circle class at her home on Sheridan avenue Tuesday evening. Mrs. L. H. Lutz and Mrs. D. B. Wolfgang were associate hostesses. Mrs. Lester Downs led devotions. Contest prizes were won by Mrs. John Fink, Mrs. William Bifmelin, Mrs. Cleo Buchter and Mrs. Frank Brannon. Next meeting will be held June 30 at the home of Mrs. Clarence Swaidner, 147 Reba avenue.

DINNER PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Haering, 37 Sherman avenue, entertained last night in honor of Mrs. Haering's father, J. L. Ruley, who observed his 75th birthday anniversary. Patriotic color scheme was used for the dinner table. The evening was spent socially.

THE $45 DEDUCTIBLE NOW.

CINCINNATI, O.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Gladys Adams is convinced that the "meanest thief" caught up with her. While on the way to pay her income tax, she was robbed of $45. "That's bad enough," she said. "But he took the tax forms too, and I spent days filing them out."

WEATHER, CANCELLED, BUT . .

Shower Given In Honor of Mary Bishop

Honoring Miss Mary Bishop, who will become the bride of Wendell Marks Bell on June 13, Mrs. William W. Gross entertained at her home, 37 Chilton avenue, Tuesday evening. Upon arrival the 12 guests were presented with corsages of iris in various shades. Card games were enjoyed with Miss Marie Hecht and Miss Carole Hills receiving the prizes in bridge and rum.

Shower of bathroom gifts from the guests and the hostess were presented to the honoree. Luncheon was served buffet style from a table centered with a bowl of yellow lilies and ferns. There were tall white tapers at each end. On the buffet there was a "Teen-age" doll, 20 inches tall and dressed to represent a bride. Her formal gown was of white satin and she had a seed pearl necklace, net veil and shower bouquet. There was a white kneeling pillow at her feet. Seven-branch candelabra with lighted tapers and an arrangement of palms and ferns formed the background.

Next party for the bride-elect will be given by Mrs. William Frisbee and Miss Helen Myers at the former's home, 534 Summit street, on June 4. The wedding will take place in the First English Lutheran church with Mr. and Mrs. William Gross as attendants.

Cultivate Soldierly Carriage for Looks And for Health

By MME. QUI VIVE

You're in the army of defense, every last girl of you. Or you ought to be. You must carry on to help your old Uncle Samuel. You can't carry on unless you keep fit. To do that you must hold your body with spirit, march splendidly or the way toward victory.

If we harp often on the subject of posture, be patient, bear with us. Poor posture is the commonest of all good looks errors. It is unnecessary. It is disgraceful. Few women walk and move with grace and splendor.

Well, women, let me tell you something; posture begins in the mind, with the will to look one's best. The girl who slouches through life is the one who does not care enough about appearance to yank up her backbone. She's lazy. She has neither gumption nor self-respect. She pays the price in time; a slovenly, ungainly figure will develop. With the muscles sagging, what can she expect? She is throwing a come-hither glance at fat cells. They respond, you betcher.

When this girl reads or sews, she huddles. When she walks, she trundles. When she sleeps she curls up like a kitten so that breathing is restricted. It all sounds pretty silly, if you ask me. Why take it for granted that a pleasing shape will remain pleasing? Years do not bring any improvement.

Good posture makes for health. It brings a desire to be active, alert, on one's toes. There's a reason. Circulation is better when the musculature is sound, the body held as it should be. With the chest lifted, breathing is not restricted, heart action is likely to be strong. All the inner organs are in condition to function more normally than if the abdominal fibers protrude, the chest is concave, shoulders thrown forward.

The backbone is the mainstay of the body. To keep it and the surrounding muscles in condition, it should be carried tall. The moment it goes slack, the fibers and tissues relax. In time, they lose tone. To preserve the youthful silhouette it is vitally necessary that carriage be correct. When walking, sitting or standing, keep in mind the need of a vibrant though easy and natural pose.

There's a simple rule: Hold in the tummy, push forward the "vital center," which is that area where the floating ribs separate. With that position it is impossible to hump the shoulders or to get the wrong curve in the spinal column.

Have a regular time each day for stretching, bending, torso twisting. If bad posture is of long standing, it will be necessary to take up the slack in unused muscles so that they can work normally again.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Despite the long, drug-induced sleep Ronald had had, his face and eyes were ravaged with his anxiety and terror for Marion. His next words made me realize that my father could have told him nothing of the messages in code contained in Marion's letter.

"Do you suppose you could tell me now anything that you found out in Marion's letter to me?" he pleaded. "You've seen Mary, I know, and that's all I do know."

"Steady, Ronald!" I admonished the overwrought lad, with a sternness which I knew was better for him than sympathy. "Even if there should be no news for you, going out of your mind or even letting your nerves get the better of you cannot help Marion."

Ronald Can Take It.

He threw back his head and blinked his eyes as if I had dashed cold water in his face.

"Thank you, Auntie Madge," he said manfully. "I needed that."

I rose impulsively and kissed him tenderly.

"That's what I wanted to do instead of scolding you," I told him, "but I didn't dare while you were in that difficult mood."

"That's a mild name for it," he said with a twisted smile, "but you'll see that I can take it. I'm not even going to ask you another question unless you see fit to tell me things."

"But I'm going to ask you one," I retorted. "Didn't my father tell you anything about that letter of Marion's, and what Mary found out about it?"

"I think he meant to tell me more," he replied, "but just then Dr. Twitchell came over and gave him your message. Then we hustled over here as fast as we could. Since then I've scarcely seen him. He told me to lie down, or read, or do anything I liked, until he had time to talk to me, and said he would be very busy in the basement. So I've been just marking time until you came."

"No wonder your nerves were on edge," I said. "But Father simply had to let you be on your own. You see, I had told him over the telephone that I had run into an auction unexpectedly, and had bought six petit-point covered chairs and a station wagon, wonderful bargains, and was bringing them down with me. I was talking over a telephone, so I couldn't tell him the truth, but I'm sure he realized that I meant six gangsters, so he must have been busy preparing the basement for their reception."

"But now you won't have to wait a minute longer," I went on, returning to my chair. "I'm going to tell you everything I've discovered. However, I don't want you to say anything at all until I have finished."

"Not a word," he promised earnestly. Then I rapidly outlined the history of the code book found among Mary's girlhood keepsakes stored in the farmhouse attic, and the translation by Mary of Marion's letter.

"I also gave him an account of the letter received by Lillian and its translation by Mary, then of the capture of the gangsters who had come to the Underwood home, with the attendant wounding of Harry Underwood, and next of the telegram Lillian had received, rebuking her for going to the restaurant rendezvous before the night on which Marion had begged her to come, and ordering her, with veiled but significant threats to Marion if she failed to obey, to come on the next night, but to come alone.

Fears for Marion.

There I stopped, for I saw that I no longer had his close attention, which had wandered after I ended the translation of the second letter. I also saw that he was full of explosive speech, and decided that it would be better if he got it out of his system before he heard anything more.

"Oh, my poor, ingenious darling!" he said, when I stopped talking. "Forced to write those letters, yet finding a way to let us know the truth about them! But she still is in terrible danger, isn't she? And nothing is being done about it."

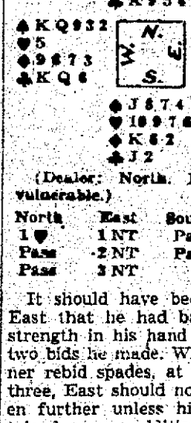
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T IGNORE WARNINGS

Practically all good players treat the rebid of a suit, in the hand opposite the first bidder of the side, as a warning that the hand might be weak generally, though with a suit long enough to protect itself. Unless your own hand is a bit above minimum, you will usually do well to heed the cautious note which has been sounded, and let your partner play the deal instead of going on to some contract of your own.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

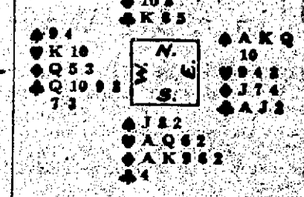
North	East	South	West
1 ♥	1 NT	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	3 NT

It should have been patent to East that he had barely enough strength in his hand for the first two bids he made. When his partner rebid spades, at the range of three, East should not have spoken further unless his hand contained some additional strength, such as another ace or perhaps another king and queen.

As it turned out, West would have had a good chance to make his 3-Spades. The best play could have resulted in his losing only two tricks in diamonds and one each in the black suits.

At No Trumps, the heart 6 was opened to the Q and A. Three high Spades and a fourth to the J brought a return to the heart K, and then the heart 8 to the J. East now led a club to gain entry for dummy's spades, but when the A won the Q, a fourth heart was scored and two diamond tops, setting the contract two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer South. Both sides vulnerable).

If West wins the third diamond and leads the club Q, how could North calculate accurately whether he should cover or not, in an effort to stop 3-No Trumps by West?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, May 29.

Excitement, high pressure tactics and tempo may be looked for this day, judging by a very stimulating series of planetary aspects. This applies to all affairs, particularly large and important projects working in connection with public, community, fraternal and political activities as well as in co-operation with major corporations of a semi-private nature. While great progress and productiveness are indicated, yet there is a retarding as well as a peculiar or surprising development to be rigorously dealt with, by decisive acts.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much tension and stress, with the energies under high pressure and moving under enforced tempo in the direction of high places or objectives. This is probably in connection with public, group or fraternal interests, whose support is assured. But there may be certain erratic or peculiar situations, which may prove minor setbacks.

A child born on this day should be energetic, ambitious and public spirited, with practical versatility and constructive ability, although having some eccentricities.

U. S. Army Buys Kitchen Utensils In a Big Way

BOSTON — (INS) — Uncle Sam recently did some shopping for kitchen utensils for the army.

The shopping list added up to 3,500,000 pieces of equipment and the bill was about half a million dollars.

Included were 56,982 mustard pots, 5,696 rolling pins and nearly a million forks.

At Jefferson, Indiana, the quartermaster corps has a depot where the newly acquired equipment is kept for distribution. This depot must be the largest pantry in the world.

There are 285,000 soup bowls, 284,914 tumblers, 79,000 bake pans, 3,000 nutmeg graters, 28,000 basting spoons and 25,000 bread knives recently acquired during the shopping splurge.

Just to prove the quartermaster corps is taking no chances, 23,000 extra covers were ordered for the mustard pots to take care of inevitable breakage.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

To Release Flow of LIVER BILE

Normally about a quart of digestion-aiding bile should be discharged into the intestines every 24 hours. A scanty flow—a slowing-up may cause sick headaches, bowel sluggishness and so-called bilious indigestion with its "half-sick," sour depressed feeling.

If you suffer from such symptoms because you need more bile released from the gall-bladder, try world famous Kruschen Salts. Get a bottle tonight—start right in tomorrow morning and take as much as will lie on a dime in a glass of water (hot or cold) half an hour before breakfast, or in your morning cup or tea or coffee, and keep it up for 30 days; don't miss a morning and note the results for yourself. You can get Kruschen, a famous English formula made in the U.S.A., at Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store, Wm. F. Hursh, or any drug store. You must be satisfied or money back.

CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS Note: For an occasional cathartic or purgative to relieve common constipation, we believe there is nothing better than quick-acting Kruschen in larger doses—try it according to directions on the bottle.

M'Nutt to Freeze War Workers to Jobs

THE WAR TODAY

This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is being written in his absence for a fortnight by Fred Vanderschmidt.

The opening phase of the fifth major conflict in the African desert is more like a great battle at sea between powerful fleets than anything else.

Sweeping over trackless sand like naval task forces, the armored columns circle in search of the mobile enemy, swoop, withdraw, and spar for advantage. The gaining or holding of ground means nothing in itself. The whole object is destruction of the enemy tank squadrons. Fixed defenses are few — like seaports which are defended at a distance. Maneuverability is limited only by the endurance of machines and men.

Right now the armored striking force of Marshal Rommel's German Africa Korps is endeavoring to annihilate the British mechanized units defending the approaches to Tobruk, the key desert "port" in any general advance into Egypt.

It is a touch-and-go affair, almost impossible to follow. The Germans and Italians, cagily, have not even mentioned in their communiques that an attack has begun. The terrible heat of this season is an important hazard.

Should Rommel succeed in wiping out the roving iron defenders of this sandy sea, and then take Tobruk by infantry assault, he would be in a position to wage a prolonged and large-scale campaign which would engage the whole energies of the Allied armies in all the middle-east, divert much of the assistance which Russia will need to defend the Caucasus and weaken the frontal defenses of the middle-east oil countries.

In a major sense the whole middle-east from the Libyan desert to Iran must be regarded as an extended flank of the Russian theater of war.

Moreover, the great Allied oil reservoirs east of Suez are directly vulnerable to air or seaborne attack or to a land drive via Turkey — especially if the Allied fighting forces are heavily engaged in the west.

Those are the reasons why the desert battleground can never be regarded as isolated or localized, and that is why there must be a decision in Libya or Egypt before the ultimate Allied offensives can get in motion.

America's own stake in this battle is a big one. Virtually the whole service of supply in the middle east is in U. S. hands. A large percentage of the equipment of the British fighting force, on the sand and in the air as well, came from American factories. U. S. service troops in increasing noumbers have reached the rearward areas to support the combatant British, who no longer have the Australian overseas contingent in reserve.

TAX EVASION DEVICES WILL BE EXPOSED

Treasury to Reveal Evidence of Excessive Salaries, Bonuses at Session.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The treasury, it was learned today, will lay before a private meeting of congressional leaders evidence of excessive corporate salaries and bonuses, extravagant promotion expenditures, and other devices used to evade war taxes.

At the same time, the treasury delegation, to be headed by Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan, is expected to discuss with the congressmen means of punishing evasion cases of holding down salaries through drastic enforcement of some old, little-used statutes. The congressional group will be the members of the joint house and senate committee on internal revenue taxation.

Since details were guarded, the nature of the treasury's data could only be judged from the fact that they were to be presented by Morgenthau in person at an undisclosed nocturnal meeting place. One informed source, when asked if the material was "sensational," replied:

"I don't think people will lay down their papers before they have read every word of it."

This also implied that the findings might be made public after tonight's meeting. To outward appearances, they resembled treasury testimony a few years ago on methods used by wealthy persons to evade taxes by incorporating yachts, personal holding companies and other elaborate devices.

A possible preview of some of the material was contained in recent findings of the house naval affairs committee, which brought out that the Cleveland firm of Jack and Heintz, Inc., paid a woman secretary $39,356 last year.

Meanwhile Edward Toland, counsel for the same committee, disclosed that he had been ordered to turn over to the internal revenue bureau a transcript of testimony taken yesterday which showed that another Cleveland company gave out $2,000,000 in employe bonuses last year.

New recruits for a corps of volunteer instructors to aid in the direction of sports, music and handicraft at the Y. W. C. A. daytime camp this summer are being sought by the camp committee. The previous ranks have been depleted by marriage and removal to other cities as well as acceptance of full time jobs that precludes camp activity. College girls or other young women with a knowledge of the three activities will speed up the program considerably by notifying the Y. W. C. A. of their willingness to serve, Mrs. Norma Miklich, program director, said.

Richland county's Louis Bromfield adds another dramatic novel to his literary achievements today with the publication, by Harpers, of "Until the Day Breaks." The novel that went on sale today at local bookstands, is laid in occupied France and has for its central character an American dancer who matches wits with Hitler's gestapo. The underground movement is introduced into the story when the heroine falls in love with a French soldier. Dramatization of the novel is now being considered by the author.

Mansfield swimming enthusiasts will have plenty in the way of water sports this year despite priorities on chlorine supplies but they may do their swimming a little later in the day. Frank Burton, city parks superintendent, said he is thinking of advancing the schedule of hours at the Liberty park pool to take into consideration the extra daylight hours made available by war time.

EXPECTED TO ACT AGAINST 'PIRATING'

Manpower Commission Also Plans Deferment of Key Men From Draft.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt today was expected to soon issue an order freezing war industry workers in their present jobs for the duration to prevent "pirating" of labor by competing firms.

The directive will carry out a policy agreed upon by the manpower commission whereby all employment in the vast war industries will be handled exclusively through the U. S. employment service.

An employe in a critical industry will be unable to change from one plant to another without the employment service's approval.

At the same time, plans are also being drawn up by the commission with a view toward draft deferment of key workers in the vital industries or essential jobs, including agriculture.

The job-freezing program was decided on at a three-hour session of the commission at which numerous instances of "labor pirating" were disclosed. A spokesman said that the situation was particularly acute in the aircraft business. One company, it was said, had raised its pay scales 15 cents an hour for the sole reason of getting new help.

The spokesman said that no new legislation will be required for the freezing policy, since such a stipulation on employment can be written into war contracts. He expressed belief that employers and labor will both readily agree to the new system.

The manpower commission is preparing a list of vital war industries and essential occupations within those industries. With the view of seeking individual deferment of workers filling such critical jobs.

It was announced that the list will be all inclusive and will contain certain types of agricultural occupations. The list will be sent to local draftboards who will consult with U. S. employment service officers in deferring certain workers.

The program will not embrace "blanket deferment" of war workers, however, it was emphasized by the commission spokesman.

SUPREME COURT RULES POLICE CAN'T COMMANDEER YOUR AUTO

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A policeman has no authority to commandeer an automobile to chase criminals, although he may order a citizen to help him capture a suspect, the Ohio supreme court holds.

The ruling was made yesterday in the suit of Nathan Blackman against the city of Cincinnati. Blackman's car was damaged after being commandeered by a policeman to chase a suspected criminal.

Hamilton county courts refused to allow Blackman damages and the supreme court upheld the ruling on the grounds that the city was not liable because the policeman commandeered the vehicle without authority.

The tribunal commented, however, that "on moral grounds the city of Cincinnati could well experience the urge to reimburse appelants for their loss."

Reversing Stark county courts, the tribunal sent back for new trial the suit of Robert Vaughan of Massillon, against the Industrial Silica corporation and Louis Wilkoss for damages resulting from injuries suffered in the explosion of a dynamite cap. Vaughan, 14 years old, had been awarded damages of $7,000.

The court refused to review Erie county court decisions awarding William Bahnsen $15,000 from the Ohio Public Service company for personal injuries.

Arthur Walton of Canton lost his suit for damages for alleged false arrest by police officer Carl England. Stark county courts had refused him damages.

CHANGES RULE

Married Men Between 18-28 Eligible For Navy.

Revision of requirements now makes it possible for married men between the ages of 18 and 28 to apply for reserve midshipmen training, it was announced here today by W. G. Cox, U. S. Navy recruiting officer.

Previously only college graduates who were unmarried were accepted for four-months training after which they are commissioned as ensigns.

College graduates with at least two semesters of mathematics, including triganometry, and single undergraduates are eligible, the officer said.

ONLY ONE LEE GETS ON BALLOT

Elections Board Rules Out Second Oklahoma Josh.

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— The name of but one Josh Lee will appear on the ballot for the Oklahoma primary election and it will be that of the incumbent United States senator.

The state election board yesterday, erasing the name of the other Josh Lee, a 48-year-old farmer who had filed as a rival to the senator for the Democratic nomination, cited a statute adopted by the last legislature designed to prevent the plague of famous name filings which had become a feature of recent Oklahoma primaries.

Senator Lee challenged farmer Lee's candidacy on the ground that it was meant to divert votes from himself.

2 ROB BUCYRUS GAS STATION

BUCYRUS — Two armed men early today held up and robbed J. B. Sebenolar, attendant of a downtown gasoline filling station and fled with an undisclosed amount of money.

Sebenolar told police the men drove into the station at 6:40 a. m., and after paying for 70 cents worth of fuel followed him into the station where one drew a pistol and locked him in a storeroom. He escaped after the car drove away.

The attendant said the pair was dressed in overalls. He said they drove a late model black sedan.

School Buses Used to Ease Ohio Transportation Problem.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Numerous Ohio school buses, customarily idle during the summer vacation, now are being used to transport workers from their homes to war plants, the state utilities commission reported.

The transportation problem is being met temporarily, officials said, by issuing carrier certificates to school bus drivers "for the duration," extending regular carrier routes and by rearranging trip schedules to suit the needs of war industries.

ABOARD A U. S. WARSHIP WITH THE ALLIED FORCES, (Delayed)—Probably the happiest and most relieved man aboard this warship as it steamed away following an attack on Japanese positions in New Guinea was a certain, red-haired young aviator.

"Red" celebrated his 28th birthday in his single-seated fighter, charging at a terrific speed on enemy ships in Salamaua.

After strafing a tender and a transport, blowing up two motor launches and raking enemy barges, the flier returned to the ship without a scratch and grinning broadly.

He had beaten the jinx which had threatened to cut short his life—a "hex" he said was put upon him by a fortune-teller years ago.

At that time, the fortune-teller forecast a number of events to take place in Red's life. He laughed at the idea, but one by one the events came true.

He began to worry. Finally, all the forecasts had come true but one—that he would not pass his 28th birthday.

The flier became obsessed with this thought. As a result, he took every precaution in his flying trips.

Feeling that the chief danger was to be lost at sea and then drift in his rubber boat, perhaps to a wild island, the ensign collected equipment to take along on every flight.

The equipment included: Fishhooks, and fish-line, a hunting knife, an extra flashlight, extra ammunition, revolver, a small can of oil to keep his revolver in condition, extra patching equipment for the rubber boat, quinine, extra food rations, spare compressed air tubes for his life jacket, a waterproof cigar lighter.

He always carried a $10 bill under his identification tag and a picture of his girl friend, for good luck. He recently took out additional life insurance and left money for the premium with a shipmate. He studied up on the best method to battle a shark.

Just before the New Guinea attack, he added several new items to his collection, including cufflinks, shiny uniform buttons and various trinkets to trade to the natives on the island should he be forced down. From the galley, he secured a meat cleaver to hack his way through the jungles.

Much of this equipment he carried continually, because he never knew which plane he would fly. For that reason he was nicknamed "Pauncho" by his fellow aviators "because he bulged in places."

By a peculiar circumstance, an attack against Jap positions in New Guinea fell on his 28th birthday—the supposed deadline of his life.

"I thought I'd make it," he said as he climbed out of his plane, "but I'm sure glad it's over. Now I've got nothing to worry about."

Cigaret License Sale Drops; War Held Responsible

Sale of cigaret licenses in Richland county has been reduced sharply by the absence of many young men who have gone into the armed forces and the closing of filling stations as a result of tire rationing, clerks in the county auditor's office said today.

Only 315 wholesale and retail licenses have been sold in the county this year as against 414 last year, the auditor's figures showed.

Dealers applying at the auditor's office for permits reported a marked drop in sales and pointed out that a number of filling stations, many of which had cigaret vending machines, have closed because of tire rationing and the resulting slump in business.

Although the deadline for 1941 licenses was last Monday, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said there may be a few dealers who have not yet obtained their 1942 permits. State inspectors check dealers for compliance with the license law.

MASS OUTPUT OF GIANT BOMBERS NEAR REALITY

Ford Makes Good His Belief In 13 Months at World's Biggest Plane Plant.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(Wide World Automotive Editor)

DETROIT—Volume output of massive four-engined bomber planes is rapidly approaching at the great Willow Run Aircraft factory and one of the most gratified individuals connected with the undertaking is Henry Ford.

It was two years ago today that Ford, apostle of mass production, asserted that under certain conditions he could build 1,000 airplanes a day. He was talking about pursuit ships. There were many who openly scoffed at the claim.

The pioneer automobile builder, near his 79th birthday, however, never ceased to believe the task would have been nothing more than an "assembly job."

While he had no opportunity to test his ability to make 1,000 planes a day, he has accomplished at Willow Run something equally startling and unbelievable; in less than 13 months he has converted a farm and wooded section into a gigantic aircraft factory bigger than anything the world ever has seen and has mass output of the aerial battleships in sight.

Neither Ford nor any of the aircraft industry's engineers dreamed of mass production of bomber planes two years ago when the noted industrialist talked about volume output of pursuit ships. Yet today the plans for Willow Run, with a mile of assembly lines and using the combined production technique of both automobile and aircraft industries, call for the giant planes to roll out "by the dozens" each day.

To Ford, who once built 10,000 automobiles in one day, bringing Willow Run to bomber plane production in only a few weeks more than a year isn't nearly as startling as it is to the average individual. It has developed precisely as he expected, although production expectations have been increased several times.

To thoroughly appreciate what the production of dozens of bomber planes in one factory each day entails, you have to get a close-up view of one of the leviathans of the skies in its finished state and in knocked-down form with thousands of parts scattered over dozens of sub-assembly lines.

Last summer when structural steel began to give shape to the Willow Run factory Ford firmly believed the United States would not become an active participant in the war. At the same time he agreed there was need for a powerful national defense.

With unprovoked attack on Pearl Harbor he made it clear that although he never has ceased to deprecate war he was in this one to the limit of his productive capacity.

Today every activity of the thousands of workers in the Ford organization is associated with the war effort.

If Ford correctly appraises the post-war prospect, Willow Run will continue to turn out airplanes after hostilities cease—not in the same volume as the war effort demands, but in considerably greater numbers than any American factory made them in the pre-war days.

In thus confirming his intention to remain in aviation after the war, Ford said, "you'll be amazed at the need there'll be for airplanes after the war."

He visualizes a great expansion in aerial freight and passenger traffic, although he says bluntly that "we lug things around too much now."

But right now, the slender, slightly stooped production genius is thinking solely in terms of war necessity and an ever increasing flow of giant bombers out of Willow Run. He smiles when he talks about it. Over the years he has heard many persons say something "couldn't be done." It was said about Willow Run and the mass production of bomber aircraft.

"There it is," says Ford.

Film Comedians Express a Few Ideas On Sarongs

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Promising to put a stop to the cycle of South Sea Island pictures Hollywood's film factories have been turning out recently, Abbott and Costello today were cavorting through the latest—"Pardon My Sarong."

"Maybe it's sarong thing to do," quipped Abbot, "but we're gonna take all the desert island plots and roll 'em into one."

"After we're through this one," said Abbott, "we'll probably hang."

"Anyway, the zanies, in an all-out comic effort, will pay tribute to Tarzan with a tree-swinging sequence they claim will out-Tarzan Tarzan. Of course, there's a typhoon sequence. And a volcano erupts about every two reels.

"I'm so scared," said Costello, "the wardrobe department is giving me an extra heavy duty fright-wig!"

Oh, yes—there's a love angle, too. Luscious Virginia Bruce and Maria Montez are on the struggling end of the heart interest.

BROTHERHOOD TO SEE MOVIES

Showing of Motion pictures made in South and Central America will highlight the program at a supper meeting of the Brotherhood of the First Methodist church at 6:30 p. m. next Tuesday in the church basement.

The movies will be shown by Roy Owens of the sales department of the Automatic Electric company of Chicago who will be here by courtesy of the Mansfield Telephone company. He will lecture as he shows the pictures.

The supper is for men, but women have been invited to the program which will follow.

Mansfield high school is going in for that soul stirring, spine tingling little thing known as tradition.

Soon in what are sometimes called the "classic halls" of the high school, there will be hanging enlarged pictures of Mansfield's All-Ohio athletic stars of the past school year. But ENLARGED! 30x20 inches.

Bob Winbigler and Joe Romano will be there twice, in football and basketball uniforms, while Duke Weber and Bill Doolittle will be up there in gridiron togs.

* * *

Grid Coach Paul Snyder was seen carrying the pictures around town the other day, looking for someone to frame them in time for presentation before school closes.

And proudly showing them to each and every sport fan he encountered.

The "M" association is giving the pictures to the school.

"Maybe," says Snyder, "those pictures will inspire some of our future athletes to great deeds."

They're starting an entirely new kind of scholastic tradition up at Massillon—at least it's new for Massillon, the home of high school football.

Just this week the good folk of Massillon turned down, for the third time, a school levy which school officials have claimed is necessary if school is to start on time in the fall.

And the school officials have threatened to delay opening of school until November, which would automatically take the Massillon Tigers out of the early high school grid picture, since they'd have to be in school and eligible to play before going on the gridiron.

Maybe they'll vote again, and maybe the school officials will threaten again, and maybe the voters will turn down the levy again.

But I've still got a hunch that come what may, Massillon schools will start on time, and the Tigers will be in there rolling over the opposition much as always.

* * *

Yes, Massillon will roll in high gear,
And we'll keep shouting: "Hold that Tiger!"

What sort of a scholastic tradition they're building down at Mt. Vernon I wouldn't know.

You'll recall that Grid Coach Tommy Thomas held up football letters because some equipment was stolen, and that Cage Coach Mike Prech refused to give basketball letters because all but three members of his team boasted of not keeping training.

Now Tommy has decided to award the grid letters after all, but Mike is still silent, and the end of school so near.

Incidentally Tommy recently was awarded a continuing teachers' contract by the Mt. Vernon board of education, two years before time. because of his "fine influence on the boys."

Bonham Hopes for 30 Wins

Has Good Start With Seven Victories In Row.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE most coveted pitching goal in the major leagues is 30 victories in a season. It is much more valuable, and a whole lot more difficult to obtain, than a no-hitter.

The feat hasn't been accomplished since Dizzy Dean did it for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1934 and it hasn't been done in the American league since 1931 when Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove won 31 for the Philadelphia Athletics.

After Bob Feller joined the navy last winter there didn't seem to be a pitcher anywhere likely to achieve the pinnacle this season—or next, either.

Yet, Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, big righthand ace of the New York Yankees, apparently has found the right trail and his chances look about as good as Feller's ever did.

Bonham bagged his seventh straight victory yesterday, 8-3, from the Philadelphia Athletics. He pitched an expert seven-hit game without allowing a walk.

The big fellow is no strikeout specialist, but his "forkball" baffles the batters and his control is amazing. In seven games this season he has walked only five batters.

He may not win 30 games, because there are only 24 weeks in a season and he may not get to work often enough. But at present he is right on the beam—approximately one-fourth the victories in one-fourth of the season.

The Yanks gave Bonham a five-run boost in the fourth inning as they coasted to their 16th victory, in 19 games.

The Boston Red Sox came out of a slump to overpower the Washington Senators, 10-1, in a night game.

Chicago's usually weak-hitting White Sox collected 17 hits at Cleveland, but had plenty of trouble taming the Indians, 9-7.

The St. Louis Browns backed up Johnny Niggeling with extra-base hitting to beat the Detroit Tigers, 5-2. Walt Judnich led the attack with a homer, a double and a single.

The Brooklyn Dodgers increased their National league lead to six games by belting the Boston Braves, 4-1, with a three-run ninth-inning rally.

Bucky Walters pitched seven-hit ball as the Cincinnati Reds conquered the Chicago Cubs, 10-1.

The surging St. Louis Cardinals moved into second place slightly ahead of Boston by routing the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3.

Bob Carpenter pitched the New York Giants to a 6-2 decision over the Phils in a night game at Philadelphia.

SUGAR ROBINSON RULES AS FAVORITE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ray Robinson, the Harlem hammer, is a 1 to 4 favorite over Coast Guardsman Marty Servo in their boxing battle at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Robinson had a tough time beating Servo in their last meeting in September, but the experts agreed he could do it this evening and chalk up his 21st straight victory in his unbeaten run as an amateur and pro. Some 15,000 fans are expected to pay around $40,000 to see the tussle.

Buckeyes Run In Ohio Meet

Tune Up For National Event and Trojans.

BEREA — (AP) — Ohio State's Western Conference champions get a fine chance to tune up in the Ohio A. A. U. track meet here Saturday for an attack on seemingly impregnable Southern California in the national collegiates

Undefeated Miami, with the most powerful squad in its history, seems likely to offer Dr. Frank Castleman's team the only real contest for the team championship but the 168 entrants promise stiff opposition for many of the individual crowns.

In the sprints, for instance, the Buckeyes' Captain Ralph Hammond faces 16 others, including three 100-yard men who have bettered ten seconds. Hammond's best time of the year, 9.5 seconds, is only a tenth above the recognized w orld record.

In the two-mile run Virgil Alston of Miami, the Drake relays champion, again will duel with Ollie Hunter, the Notre Dame star who lost to Alston by a yard in the Des Moines games. A last-minute entry is Quent in Brelsford former Michigan U. half-miler who has transferred to Ohio Wesleyan Brelsford ran an exhibition this spring in 1.56. His foes include Les Eisenhart, last year's Ohio State captain and the current national junior 800-meter title-holder.

Indians Blasted By Sox

Wind Up Home Stand With 9 Wins, 8 Losses.

DETROIT — (AP) — Perhaps a change of scenery will take the Cleveland Indians' minds off a none too successful string of games on their home grounds.

They dropped their sixth contest in the last seven yesterday in Cleveland, 9 to 7, to the Chicago White Sox and wound up their home stay with nine wins and eight defeats.

It was some consolation, however, to contemplate the fact they remained in second place all through the slump.

After a pair of games here, the Tribe will return to Cleveland for a double bill on Decoration day with the St. Louis Browns, then traipse out to St. Louis for a pair of games Sunday. After that they will spend two weeks in the east.

Chicago collected 17 hits yesterday in downing the Indians, including Joe Kuhel's three-run homer in the second inning. Fourteen of the hits were off Jim Bagby in seven and one-third innings. As a result, Bagby's account now stands at two lost and six won.

The Indians made homers, too, but in vain. Bagby and Roy Weatherly slammed successive four-baggers, in the second inning and Les Fleming registered another in the fifth with one aboard.

* * *

Johnny Humphries, a former Indian, was batted out in the fifth, but his successor, Joe Haynes, put the hex on the Tribe and shut them out the rest of the way.

Cleveland Gets Buck-Illini Tilt

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Cleveland Alumni of Ohio State and Illinois will see a long-cherished hope come true next fall as grid teams from the schools meet in the first Western Conference game ever played there.

The Nov. 14 game, originally scheduled for the Illinois Memorial stadium, was shifted to Cleveland Municipal stadium yesterday after the addition of a game with the Great Lakes Naval Training station gave the Illini six home contests. Ten per cent of gross receipts will go to the Army and Navy Relief funds.

SHELBY—First of the series of special activities as ladies' day will be held tomorrow at the Shelby Country club. Play will start at 9 a. m. Contestants will choose their own partners.

Brews Bolster Loop Margin

Hold Two-and-Half Game Edge Over Blues.

(By Associated Press)

The attempt of the Milwaukee Brewers to bolster their first place margin before taking on the challenging Kansas City Blues this week-end is beginning to show progress.

* * *

Milwaukee picked up more ground last night, beating Louisville 4 to 3, and now leads the Blues by 2½ games in their fight for American association honors.

Kansas City, meantime, got few hits and even fewer walks off George Gill at Indianapolis and wound up a 5 to 0 shutout victim.

Minneapolis cut the Blue's second place margin to three games by defeating Columbus, 3 to 0, behind Owen Scheetz. Three Columbus errors gave Minneapolis a one-run lead in the opening inning. After that Scheetz and Harry Brecheen pitched on even terms until the ninth when the Millers got three hits to clinch victory.

Pitching also was the feature of the St. Paul-Toledo double header. Toledo won the opener, 2 to 1, St. Paul the nightcap 3 to 0.

Snead Shoots 9 Under Par

Eliminates Sam Byrd From P. G. A. Tourney.

By OSCAR FRALEY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. Y.—(U.P.)— Only 16 players were left today when the field turned out for the second round of the PGA championship tournament and the sharp-eyed men who have watched golfers came and go tabbed little Ben Hogan and Slamming Sammy Snead as the ones who will bear notice when the pressure begins to tell.

* * *

Hogan, the mechanical man who began playing in this last of the year's great tournaments with an aching wrist, had a date with Ky Laffoon on the Seaview Country club course and Snead, shooting for one more big cup before he joins the navy, drew Willie Groggin of White Plains, N. Y. Both were favored.

Ordinarily, Laffoon would not be rated much competition for Hogan, but today wasn't an ordinary day. It was, instead, a day when anything could happen. As the pros went back to work they had a record shattering total of 57 sub-par strokes to their credit and Laffoon was responsible for six.

The Cherokee clouter reached a peak in the opening rounds of match play yesterday when he trounced Vic Bass of Keokuk, Ia., 12 and 11 for the day's most lopsided triumph. He was eight under par on the first 18 with a 31-35--36. Hogan, meanwhile, was unpressed in eliminating Ben Loving of Long Meadow, Mass., 7 and 6.

Snead's favoritism was easily explained. He knocked over Sam Byrd, the former New York Yankee out-fielder, 7 and 6, and clipped par by nine strokes on the 30 holes he played. Groggin had his troubles eliminating Ed Burke, of Hamden, Conn., 2-1, playing par golf for the 35 holes.

* * *

As the eight matches began, Defending Champion Vic Ghezzi, formerly of Deal, N. J., and now an army corporal, was on the sidelines, blasted out of the tournament by Jimmy Demaret, the chubby Texan who dominated the 1940 winter swing. Demaret upset Ghezzi, 4 and 3, and drew the Veteran Tom Harman of Montclair, N. J., today.

* * *

Craig Wood was paired with Leland Gibson of Kansas City, Mo. The national open champion was six under par for 32 holes yesterday when he bested Rod Munday of Toledo, O., 5 and 4.

Ed Dudley eliminated the former champion Denny Shute, 3 and 2, and Tony Penna hacked down Jimmy Hines of Great Neck by a similar count.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

STOCK LEADERS CONTINUE RISE IN DAY'S MART

Heavy Construction Remains Far Above 1941 Mark But Starts Downward.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Leading stocks continued to display advancing tendencies in today's market.

Gainers of fractions included U. S. Steel, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft and Phelps Dodge. Off a shade were General Motors, Chrysler and Bethlehem.

Market trend followers studied the summary of the Engineering News Record which placed heavy construction awards for the week ended Tuesday at 132 per cent above the corresponding period last year but 25 per cent under the preceding 1942 week. Private building was 81 per cent below the same week a year ago and 41 per cent less than in the week before.

Notice was taken of the Dun & Bradstreet compilation disclosing bank clearings in 24 cities during the past week were 8 per cent lower than in the previous week but 8.3 per cent larger than in like days of 1942.
